

In Brooklyn.

One extension course.

PHARMACOLOGY

Cornell University Medical College.

Two courses.

New York University.

Three courses.

PHYSIOLOGY

Cornell University Medical College.

Two courses.

New York University.

One course.

Columbia University.

Two courses.

MEDICAL VISITORS TO NEW YORK

The New York Academy of Medicine desires to extend a welcome to all members of the medical profession who may visit New York. It offers its facilities in the hope that they may be helpful in making the visitors' stay both pleasant and profitable.

The Library (open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.) is one of the largest of its kind in the United States, and over a hundred readers visit it every day. It contains upwards of 140,000 books and over 100,000 pamphlets, which are fully catalogued. Its files of American and foreign periodicals are very complete.

Meetings. Besides the two stated meetings of the Academy held each month there are monthly meetings of the twelve different groups of Fellows organized into sections devoted to various branches of medicine and surgery and to historical and cultural medicine. These stated and section meetings are open to all physicians and to medical students. In addition to these meetings many medical societies of the city hold their meetings at the Academy. There are usually one or more meetings held at the Academy each night of the month except Sundays and holidays.

The Committee on Public Health Relations. At the office of the Committee on Public Health Relations, pertinent information is gathered with regard to the health activities of the municipal and voluntary social service agencies. Studies are made of problems bearing on public health administration as well as on the work of hospitals, dispensaries, and other agencies dealing with the community relationships of medicine, and reports are issued. Some of these reports are available for distribution.

Bureau of Clinical Information. The Bureau is maintained by the Committee on Medical Education. It offers detailed information regarding opportunities for graduate medical study in New York and other cities of the United States and Canada. The Bureau has prepared a guide in which the opportunities for clinical study in the hospitals of the city are listed and described. It also publishes a daily bulletin of medical and surgical clinics of the city. Physicians are invited to make the Bureau their headquarters while in the city.

OPENING OF THE NEW BUILDING

The opening of the new building of The New York Academy of Medicine on Fifth Avenue and 103rd Street was celebrated by a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on the evening of November 17 in honor of the newly-elected Honorary Fellows. Formal opening exercises were held at the new building on the next afternoon, followed in the evening by the presentation of the newly-elected Honorary Fellows, and the Carpenter Lecture by Professor Michael I. Pupin, of Columbia University. The Library was opened for consultation on the following morning, November 19, having been closed for the preceding ten days while the books were being moved from the old building on Forty-third Street.

THE DINNER

The banquet hall of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was completely filled by the guests, when after the elaborate dinner had been disposed of Dr. George D. Stewart introduced as the first speaker Dr. Harvey W. Cushing, of Boston, surgeon-in-chief of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Dr. Cushing spoke of the library as a factor in the medical field, giving a brief outline of the history of the Boston Medical Library Association, which was founded over